Special Category Data Policy Document

(Retention and erasure policy document)

Date Created: April 2018

This document sets out:

- how we will comply with the data protection principles to process special category personal data
- how we will handle special category data that we process, our lawful basis and purpose of processing and the relevant condition for processing under GDPR and data protection law
- it explains our policies for the retention and erasure of personal data processed under the relevant condition

This policy document will be retained, reviewed and (if appropriate) updated by us and (if requested) made available to the Information Commissioner, until six months after we cease carrying out the processing.

Special category data at a glance:

Special category data is personal data which the General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) says is more sensitive, and so needs more protection. In order to lawfully process special category data, we must identify both a lawful basis under GDPR and a separate condition for processing special category data.

The special categories are personal data revealing racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, or trade union membership, and the processing of genetic data, biometric data for the purpose of uniquely identifying a natural person, data concerning health or data concerning a natural person's sex life or sexual orientation.

The special category personal data that we may process are racial or ethnic origin, religion, trade union membership, biometrics (where used for ID purposes as documentary evidence to support a potential elector's application), health, sex life or sexual orientation.

The provision of equality monitoring data such as race or ethnic origin, sexual orientation and health (disability) is optional in some circumstances. We will tell you when this applies at the time we collect the information.

Protecting children's data

We only collect and use children's data from the age of 14 or 15 to add them as a potential elector to vote, at the age of 16, at Scottish elections. When we process children's data such as adding them as a potential elector we ensure the data is held securely with limited access. The data is processed under the lawful basis of public task by the Electoral Registration officer to comply with the Electoral Law and regulations.

Principles: the General data Protection Regulations (GDPR) has 6 rules that we must follow when collecting and using personal information and to comply we must take steps to make sure all personal information is:

- processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner
- collected for specified, explicit and legitimate purposes
- adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary
- accurate and up to date
- kept in a form which permits identification of data subjects for no longer than is necessary
- processed securely

What are the lawful bases for processing?

The lawful bases for processing are set out in Article 6 of the GDPR. At least one of these must apply whenever we process personal data:

(a) Consent: the individual has given clear consent for us to process their personal data for a specific purpose.

(b) Contract: the processing is necessary for a contract we have with the individual, or because they have asked you to take specific steps before entering into a contract.

(c) Legal obligation: the processing is necessary for us to comply with the law (not including contractual obligations).

(d) Vital interests: the processing is necessary to protect someone's life.

(e) Public task: the processing is necessary for us to perform a task in the public interest or for your official functions, and the task or function has a clear basis in law.

(f) Legitimate interests: the processing is necessary for our legitimate interests or the legitimate interests of a third party unless there is a good reason to protect the individual's personal data which overrides those legitimate interests. (This cannot apply if to a public authority processing data to perform your official tasks.)

The special conditions under GDPR which allow processing of special category personal data are:

- Article 9(2) (a) – explicit consent has been given.
- Article 9(2) (b) – for employment, social security and social protection purposes.
- Article 9(2) (c) – for vital interests.
- Article 9(2) (d) – for legitimate activities by a foundation, association or any other not for profit body with political, philosophical or religious or trade union aim.
- Article 9(2) (e) – for employment, social security and social protection purposes.
- Article 9(2) (f) – for defence of legal claims.
- Article 9(2) (g) – for substantial public interest purposes.
- Article 9(2) (h) – for health and social care purposes.
- Article 9(2) (i) – for public health purposes.
- Article 9(2) (j) – for archiving, research and statistics purposes.

Conditions relating to the processing of the special categories of personal data

Schedule 1 of the Data Protection Act 2018 establishes conditions that permit the processing of the special categories of personal data and criminal convictions data. The Schedule is split into four parts:

- Part 1 – Conditions relating to employment, health and research
- Part 2 – Substantial public interest conditions
- Part 3 – Additional conditions relating to criminal convictions
- Part 4 – Appropriate policy document and additional safeguards

Schedule 1 of the Data Protection Act 2018 establishes conditions that permit the processing of the special categories of personal data as follows:

- The processing of the special categories of personal data meets the requirements in points (b), (h), (i) or (j) of Article 9(2) of the GDPR if it meets one of the conditions listed in Part 1 of Schedule 1.
- The processing of the special categories of personal data meets the requirement in point (g) of Article 9(2) of the GDPR if it meets one of the conditions listed in Part 2 of Schedule 1.
- Processing meets the requirement in Article 10 of the GDPR if it meets one of the conditions listed in Part 1, 2 or 3 of Schedule 1.
